

Dear Prospective Employer

Are you seeking a talented thought leader with the skill, vision and experience to turn your startup into an exceptional growth oriented million dollar business? As the founder of three successful technology businesses, I have created and mentored companies that have grown into exciting enterprises. I know what it takes to turn an operation into an organization worthy of an million dollar offer from a prestigious corporation.

During the past 20 years, I have used my skills as a graphic artist and melded them with an insatiable curiosity about technology. From childhood on, I mastered the skills of programming, networking and graphics and have years of experience in these areas working for different companies. I have always taken a leadership role in establishing innovative ideas and goals to create cutting edge technology. For example, I designed and implemented the technical architecture of IMATRIX, a company that combined advertising and gaming on the internet or at Goldrose where I initiated web site development and promotions, and at Deacon Medical which I developed computer based surgical simulators in the medical market place.

Besides my technology and artistic skills, I have a strong background as an executive and can demonstrate an excellent track record in business development. I have managed a multi-national organization based in the Philippines and India and have supervised over three hundred people. In addition, I have also demonstrated the skills necessary to move up the ladder to positions requiring greater knowledge and responsibility. I have also served as President, Vice President of Technology and Operations and in my first job as Vice President of multimedia presentation systems.

Attached is a copy of my resume and profile. I'd very much like to meet you to discuss how my skills could benefit your organization.

Sincerely,

Mickey Rivers
